The Star-spangled Banner is really the national hymn.

We have had poets crowned with fictitious immortality to write very common poetry. The style of JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL Is an Illustrious example, and he "does it" in this

REBEL ARMIES in round numbers the number of men that have been furnished to the rebel armies by the respective States since the war began: "Ala HOW MANY WITHDRAWN FROM PRODUCTIVE

The facts set forth in my last letter show that up to the year 1880, only ten million six hundred thousand acres of land in the eight States of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, and hogs; while in 1863 four million six hundred thousand acres or the land formerly used in raising cotton and sugar were added to the former wheat fields, corn fields, and stock-raising farms of the South; and it is quite certain that in 1864 twenty millions of acres in the South will be devoted to the culture of grain and the raising of cattle and hogs; and I do not speak now either of Maryland or Texas, or even of Arkaneas, Missouri, Tennessee or Kentucky. Whatever of grain or meat the South can get in 1864, from the five States last meutioned (and surely they will get some.) last mentioned (and surely they will get some,) will be in addition to that derived from the twenty millions of seres just mentioned.

HOR. In their agricultural and stock-raising op-erations of the present year, the South will be dependent on what has never failed them in any reat degree during the war, namely, the la fully eight hundred thusand are sole-bodied men, and these negroes, with the one million or more white men referred to above, will give the South all the labor that will be ab-

From these facts, it will be seen how the south can raise, during this year, the amount of grain and the number of cattle and hogs mentioned in my last letter. And I have thus given what may be called the economic view of the Southern situation for the year 1884. It is a view of the question which has occupied a great share of the attention of Jeff, Davis and the leading men of the South; and all its details have been systematised and planned out with a far greater minuteness than I have been able to describe. In doing this, they have ex-ercised a degree of foresight and sagacity of which we see no parallel among the men in power at the North. REHEL PLANS FOR THE CAMPAIGN OF 1864: My information in regard to the military plans of the Confederates for the campaign of 1864, corresponds in the main with the facts recently stated by your Washington corre-spondent; and this is worthy of remark, for our sources of Information must be widely different. All that I can learn leads me to believe that the approaching campaign, on the part of the rebels, will be marked by great leadings and analysis.

THE NORTH TO BE INVADED. It may be set down as a fixed fact that the defensive system of warfare, as a governing principle, has been abandoned by the South; that an invasion of the North at two, and perhaps at three points, will form a preminent feature in the campaign; that a determined effort will be made to transfer the scat of war to Northern soll, and to fight decisive battles north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers. Dnrnorth of the Potomae and Ohlo rivers. During the winter just passed systematic exertions have been made to influence public opinion in the Sonth in favor of this change; and the task has not been a difficult one. The obstacle to the adoption of the change of polley has not been on the part of the Sonthern people, who are tired of the desolations of war, but on the part of some of the influential Sonthern leaders, among whom may be named Jeff. Davis himself, Gen. Johnston and Gen. Bragg. The subject was fully discussed at the military councils that bave recently been held at Richmond, and the discussion was not abandoned until entire unanimity in regard to the new policy had been secured. The following were among the arguments used by the originators and supporters of the policy of invasion:

First, That it would be the most effectual manner of defending their own cities, for that with one Confederate army operating in the interlor of Pennsylvania, and another in Ohlo or Indiana, it would be impossible for the ing the winter just passed systematic exertions have been made to influence public opinion in the South in favor of this change; and the task has not been a difficult one. The obstacle to the adoption of the change of polley has not been on the part of the Southern people, who are tired of the desolations of war, but on the part of some of the influence.

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND TROOPS TO INVADE

PENNSYLVANIA AND ODIO It is probable that the invasion will tak place at an early period in the spring, as soon as the roads are in good order; but depending also on the state of the rivers and the dryness of the sesson. It will undoubtedly take place in two columns; one under General Lee, near-ly in the track of his former invasion of Pennsylvania; the other to strike for Cincinnata. It is intended that each shall have an effective force of fully seventy-five thousand troops, and that each shall have, in addition, a reserve force of twenty-five thousand men.

Of course the plans of the rehels will be medified by the more useria of Control Grant.

modified by the movements of General Grant. If he should take the initiative in the work, he may anticipate the rebel plans; but it is certain that they are about to make this giant cifort to change the war on their part from a defen-sive to an offensive character, knowing that whichever party can assume the offensive will have the advantage of momentum in the at-tack. We shall now see one of the most inter-esting plays in the game of strategy, and by some of the ablest masters on each side.

COLONEL WOLFORD'S SECOND SPEECH.

Extracts from a Verbatim Report of his Remarks at Lexington, Kentucky, Saturday last.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial, 6th.1

We have a full report of Colonel Frank Wolford's speech at Lexington, on Saturday last, from which we quote enough to satisfy any enricelty our readers may have as to his sentiments. The Colonel in person is thus described: Past the middle age; hair thin, grizzled and Past the middle age; hair thin, grizzled and lank; ferchead projecting over the eyebrowe; nose large, thin, and somewhat hooked; it was the shread nose, not the Roman, intensified into the Wellington hook, denoting the 'hold-fast' courage. He was somewhat round-shouldered; and, with the exception of his vest, was dressed in citizens' attire. There was a little of the slouch and less of tho soldierly bearing in the speaker, and his style was not only inelegant, but illiterate.

The Colonel's audience consisted of about three hundred copperheads, who pretended

Who is it but a tyrant who says to you, "You must light against slavery; you have no right to utter your own thoughts." It excites the people, and I say if it excites the people, the people ought to be excited. I would rather see the black and the white man free tegether, but I am not willing to see the black man free and the white man a slave; and the white man is a slave when he is denied the privilege of outering his thoughts. I talk plainly, for I feel strongly. You have not elected a lyrant to rule over you. When the people elected a President it was not to rule over you; he was to be the servant of the public. He is a hired man; you give him wages to act as your servant, and he is to act through a written Constitution, which he is sworn to faithfully obey. It, therefore, you submit to despotism, you are not worthy to submit to despotism, you are not worthy to sworn to faithfully obey. It, therefore, you should be a free peeple. For one, I don't intend to submit. I was born as a freeman, I live as a freeman, and as a freeman I intend to die. I nuderstand that a certain great General said I onch't to be shot. I may die in a dungep.

My friend (the Lieutenant Governor) has alluded to this new dochire that has spring np in reference to the disloyal States. The Abolitionist says: "You must not talk about the union of free with slave States, for it is impossible." Why this is exactly what the rebels say, that the Union is dissolved; it is just what these Confederates say who are now in arms against the country. They say, "There is no Union, therefore we are fighting for Southern rights." But we say there is no power under the Constitution for a State to seede; there is no such thing as secession ecede: there is no such thing as secesaic ecognized in the Constitution; for a State to eccde is a violation of the law of the land. If the South had a right to secede, then our If the South had a right to seceede, then our effort at conquest is carried out in a spirit of bloodshed. The whole country is laid waste; thousands of our bravest and best have been killed, and are to be killed, it your idea of restoring the Union is to be carried out in the idea of conquest.

At first we were told that we were lighting the solid leftones. It thought I had a right the solid leftones.

for self-defeuse. I thought I had a right to defend myself. The great law of nature is self-preservation. I fought in defense of my wife and family; I fought in defense of my great country; in defense of civil and religious liberty. I could never see the duty of going to war fer anything short of this, and it is because it is now avowed to be for conquest that I protest against it. When this Government was in danger I had a right to defend it; but when this Government Is safe, I have no right to kill another man. Whenever It can be said to have been preserved then the shedding of a single dorn of blood is wicked. a single drop of blood is wicked—it is mutal.

I have the right, upon the principle of selfdefense, to kill, so long as my own safety, or the self-property requires it. This defense, to kill, so long as my own safety, or the safety of my country requires it. This has been the law of all ages, and we have no right to change it now. But another party rises and determines to rule this country, not by popular sentiment and the will of the people, but with the Iron hand of oppression. This party, agreeing with therebels, says the Union is dissolved. That is what a singued down in Tennessee. They say there that the South has supported its own Government for three years, has battled for it successfully, and now you make war upon them. cessfully, and now you make war upon them, not to ask them to come back into the Union, but to degrade, conquer and subdue the very people who used to be the pride of our great nation. If we were told the truth originally, that it was a war for the Union, how can we consistently say, we will change this war, and make it a war of conquest? The Constitution, says Mr. Stevene, has nothing to do with it:

desire to rayage the South, I say I am opposed to all that. I am for whitpling the South, and if you think I am not, just come with me, and when I say I am tired or afraid of tighting, I won't insist on your going any further, I am for righting and whipping them and when we have whipped them, I am for holding cut to them the olive hranch of peace. The true plan of cloeling this war," continued the speaker, "was that proposed and acted upon by the great McClellan, that gallant man who, because he was in 'avor of a Christian warfare; who, because he advocated enlightened principles, and required us to fight according to the laws of enlightened nations, was cut off from his command. This was the great McClellan's only fank. But, mark my prediction! McClellan will be our next President!" The speaker had often, during his desnitory talk, heen allowed breathing time by something hetween a yell and a cheer, but here a mighty cheer was raised, that brought scintillations of delight into his every he was by something hetween a yell and a cheer; but here a mighly cheer was relacd, that brought scintillations of delight into his eyes; he evi-dently helieved he had chuched the null that secured the "great McClellan" as our next. Tresident.

'The only thing brought against the great McClellan was that he presecuted the war upon christian and enlightened principles; that he was opposed to stealing negroes. And when this war is over, with what amazement we shall read of the doings of the narrow-hearted, the mean, consentials, estial, vinwe shall read of the doings of the narrow-hearted, the mean, contemptible, selfish, viadletive and spiteful Abolitioniats who are willing to destroy all the civil and religious rights of the people to enable them to carry out their own miserable policy. It will take such men as McClellan to save the country. You may hear of his being leagued with the rebal General Lee, of his visiting Blehmond at night, by the light of a lantern, and such weak inventions of the enemy; but McClellan is our succor; and as long as civil and religious liberty is admired on the earth, his name shall be respected and honored." name shall be respected and honored.

to tell me that in order to save this country it is necessary that free speech should be taken from men? He who fears the free speech of a free people must be a tyrant. What is be afraid of? If he is afraid of the linguistic afraid of the atraid of? If he is afraid of the linguistic afraid of the active and vigorons minds of the country—If he is afraid of the great soul of a great people—he is a traitor to human nature. If we see a wrong, have we not a right to expose it? Who is it that is afraid of a free press? None but a tyrant is afraid of a free press? None but a tyrant is afraid of a free press and free speech. And has not the librity of the press been denied? Has not this hirthright of human liberty been repressed? And what is there that a tyrant could detect that has not been done to the overthrow of that has not been done to the overthrow of the Government of this nation? I am not the advocate of the Divine right of slavery, but who is it but a tyrant who says to you, are "Yon must fight against slavery; you have no right to utter your way thoughts"!

as some one has said. There is one instance on record which literally illustrates the fore-

We observe in our English exchanges con-iderable discussion on the question of green ranures. The system has been widely adopted in that country, and is found to pay. It ought to be practiced more generally among American farmers, for nothing is better calculated to enrich the land than green manuring.

The best crop for the purpose in this country is clover, which grows luxuriant both above and below the snriace, the roots ramifying in every direction, and penetrating as deep into the subsoil as the nature of the ground will beamit. A crop of red clover turned under ermit. A crop of red clover turned under the second season of its growth, after it has attained to maturity in size, but before the seeds begin to ripen, will rapidly decay and be more serviceable to the soil than an amount of manure costing ten times the money. Where farmers are short of manures for their land—and the number who are not large small as the second retains into account of the second retains into account to the second retains into account the second retains into account to the second retains into account the second retains into account to the second retains into account to the second retains into account to the second retains into account the second retains in the second is a small as to be scarcely taken into account—we strongly recommend the enriching of their farms by this mathod; it cannot he done so quickly and cheaply in any other way.

The value of green manure will readily be understood, when we state the fact that rinety per cent or more of the food of the plants. the test of the plants is derived from the atmosphere. Now, when we return a crop of clover to the soil, by plowing it under in a green state, we not only restore the nutriment which it has derived from the soil, and in a more progressed condition, but ninety per cent in addition which has been extracted from the great laberatory of nature—the streamher. Besides oratory of nature—the atmosphere. Besides, it must be remembered that the roots of plants, especially vigorous growers like clover, penetrate deep into the subsoil, and draw rom thence such food as is fitted to the growth of plants, and in green manuring this also is added to, and does much to enrich the urface soil.

There are various crops beside clover that can be grown to advantage as a green mannre. Thus turnips, rye, and occasionally peas, are used for tals purpose, but red clover is by for the best of anything that has ever been tried. In England several species of plants are used, among which the most common one is spurry, three crops of which ar. of engrown and turned under in one season. The great difference of climate makes it doubtful whether this plant would succeed here. The white lupin is also successfully used in the northern part of Europe. We trust experiments may be made with these plants in this country. So as to test their adaptain this country, so as to test their adapta-bility to our soil and climate as a green manure. Their yield is enormous, being 6.500 pounds per acre, and three crops annually of spurry, with roots from ten to diffeen inches long, and of white Inpin about 25,000 pounds per aere, with roots from twen y to twenly aix inches long. If such crops can be grown in this country, they will be an advantageous anhalitute for claver may arreen manne.

nsed by the originators and suppose policy of invasion:

First, That it would be the most effectual manner of defending their own cities, for that with one Confederate army operating in the interior of Pennsylvania, and another in Ohio, or Indiana, it would be impossible for the Union forces to advance against Richmond or At'anta, or indeed to invade the South at any against yon? Has he not often in the darkness and gloom of the night, and at the hazard of his life, carried news to our commanders of the enormous expense of the defense of Washington.

Second, That it would relieve the South of the enormous expense of the maintenance of the enormous expense of the the enormous expense of the maintenance of their armies, and impose that expense upon their armies, and impose that expense upon the North, while it would enable the South to draw supplies of grain, flour, clothing, and above all, of horses, ad libitum, from their enemics.

Third. That the three great objects to which the attention of the Union armiles would be directed this year would be Richmond, Atlante and Charleston; that the fortifications of Richmond and Charleston were such as to render those places practically impregnable, even if only detended by only ten thousand toops at each point; and that with such a country as that between Chattanooga and Atlante, twenty-five thousand Confederate troops could befile the advance of seventy the thousand Unionlists for six months.

South are asked to support a proclamation that has nover been issued. This is the trick thousand troops for the defense of menaced points in the South and for operating against advancing columns of Union troops, the Confederate who is the South and for operating against advancing columns of Union troops, the Confederate who seeks the support a proclamation that has nover been issued. This is the trick of a syrant. I say again I am not for murded advancing columns of Union troops, the Confederate who is the South and for operating against and troops wherewith to invade the North.

TO THE COUNTRY.

Governor Vance, of North Carolina, has moderate rebels, did not approve secession at first, and would, no doubt, be glad to get out of lt now; but he sees no alternative but to the rebel Government, and we had thought speech of the Governor leaves nothing of the sort to be hoped for. His reasons for standing firm will tell upon the people. We see in his speech what view of affairs is taken by one of the most moderate of the South ln this crisis. But the right of secession. Cannot North Carolina secede? The Confederacy cannot lepy the right. So how can Jeff. Davis object if a Confederate State should exercise a right he can't call in question? In this way

North Carolina may get out of a connection that is gailing and odious. The Governor points out the difficulty in the way, and shows that practically this right of scecesion citiers no remedy for the evil mitting the right of secession, North Carolina could not, at the same time, seeede from both Governments. The Confederate Government needs North Carolina for supplies and for transportation, and military necessity would overrule all other considerations. North Carolina would, Indeed, be out of the Confederacy, according to the theory, but what would it avail? She would be at war with the Confederate States, and they would treat her worse than now; for then the State could claim no rights under a Government she had repudiated. So ends this great right of secession—this

Our Abolition Government seems to admit and to act upon the doctrines thus laid down by the rebels. It does not admit the right of officers and men in our regular and velunteer secession; but somehow the seceded States army: have really got out. They are not under the protection of the Constitution, and, of course, they are under no obligations to it. They are to be conquered and brought back on such

CONDITION OF THE SOUTH.

TROOPS FURNISHED BY THE STATES TO THE

In regard to the prepartion of the Southern people who have been withdrawn from pro-ductive pursuits since the heginning of the war, the facts show the number to be far less than is generally supposed. The following statement, recently made in the rebel House of Representatives, by a member formerly well known in political circles at the North, shows respective states since the war began: "Alabama has furnished 40,000 men; Florida, 5,000; Georgia, 51,000; Louisiana, 36,000; Mississippi, 40,000; North Carolina, 35,000; South Carolina, 25,000; Texas, 29,000; Virginia, 103,000; Arkansas, 28,000; Tennessee, 34,000; Kentneky and Maryland, 20,000 each; Missonri, 35,000; total, 501,000."

This, of course, does not represent the present strength of the Confederate armics, which was given in a former letter; but it does show the number, and the full number, too, of the able-bodied men in the South who have been withdrawn from productive pursuits. It is easy, therefore to ductive pursuits. It is easy, therefore, to show that the requirements of the military service have not so materially affected the productive ability of the South, as many have

The entire population of the Southern States in 1860, not counting Maryland, nor the Unionists in Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, or Virginia, was nine million two hundred thousand. Of these three million two hundred thousand were slaves, and six millions were white people. Of the latter oue million two hundred thousand were of the proper military age, and were enrolled as such. Of these, as stated above, only one-third have been as yet called ont, leaving fully a million of ahle-bodied men at home. And it must be remembered, too, that there must have been in the South, in 1860, a certain number of boys hetween the ages of forriteen and cighteen years. These hoys are now grown up to be destroyed. But do you mean to tell me that in order to say this country is an interest. During the last year of the war, the number of slaves in the seven States of Alabams, Florida, Georgia, Mississippl, North and South Carolina, and Virginia, has been vastly increased by those that have been brought there by their masters from Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana. The committee on slaves and slave property in the rebel Senate estimates that three hundred and kirkty five thought slaves. hree hundred and eighty-five thousand slaves from the last named six States and Maryland have escaped and been enticed away into the Federal lines; while seven hundred and ninety five thousand slaves from the same States have been brought by their masters into that part of the South as yet untrodden by on armies. He went to the honse of Mrs. Johnson, at the corner of Sixth and Grayson streets, with a weman whom he represented to be his wife, and boarded there for some time until his bill reached $35, when he gave Mrs. Johnson his note, stating that he was in business with Mr. Munn in building cars. He also succeeded in obtaining from the store of Mr. Smith, or Green street, a fine pair of boots, and from the drug store at the corner of Seventh and Green streets some $17 worth of articles on the same representation. Livingston went to Mr. Munn and endeavored to ingratiate himself into the good favor of that gentleman by representing himself as being connected with one of the largest firms in Memphis, showing letters purporting to be from the firm, but which have since been proven to be forgeries. XJXXVIIIth Congress-First Session. Washington, April 6. SENATE.

Mr. Grimes presented a joint resolution to repeal the resolution authorizing the transfer of men from the military to the naval service.
After a short colloquy betw cen Messrs. Haie,

Grimes, Conness and Trumbuil, on the latter's motion, it was referred to the Committee on Savai Affairs.
The Senate then took up the joint resolution proposing amendments to the constitution.
Mr. Harlan addressed the Senate in support of it.

Mr. Saulsbury followed in opposition to the measure and in opposition to Mr. Johnson's Messrs. Hale and McDougaii also spoke at Mr. Powell proposed an amendment as an

Mr. Powen proposed an amendment as an additional section, providing that the President shall not hold their offices more than six years. Rejected.

Mr. Powell offered an amendment prohibit. og political proscription. Rejected.
Mr. l'owell offered an amendment providg that no bill, resolution or law passed by ongress shall relate to more than one sub-et, and have more than one title. Rejected, Mr. Davis introduced as an amendment, his olut resolution to provide for a new mode of lecting the President and Vice President, ere force presented. The bill passed to a hird reading.

Adjourned. HOUSE. Mr. Pendleton from the Seiect Committee Air. Pendleton from the Select Committee on the subject reported a bill providing that the heads of the Executive Departments may occupy seats on the floor of the House.

The bill was ordered to be printed and permission given for the majority to report the views of the minority.

The House resumed the consideration of the National Bank bill he National Bank bill. The question being on agreeing to the mendments reported from the Committee of the Whole

Mr. Hooper made the closing speech, giving his views at length why papers commenced should be under the control of national law.

The House proceeded to vote on the various amendments, agreeing to that authorizathe issue of notes of a less denominative than five dellars by a very of 76 sections. than five dollars by a vote of 76 sgainst 54, and agreed to another amendment that not more than one-sixth of the notes shall be of less denomination than five dollars, and when specie payments are resumed small notes are to go out of circulation.

The House concurred in the smendment that hay benk or banking association, organ-ized in pursuance of the laws of any State under articles of association which prohibit specified charges therein, may be changed and converted into a national banking asso-biation under the provisions of this act, with-out they change in the articles of essociation out they change in the articles of association and its directors, at the time of such schange, inay continue in cflice, and their successors may, from time to time, be elected or appointed in the manner provided by its articles of association. association.

The vote of concurring on the above was yeas 65, navs 60. The House then agreed, by a vote of 72 to 61, to the amendment that the tax and duties imposed by Congress from time to time shall be in lieu of all other taxes in said association.

CAIRO, April 6. The steamer Atlantic, from New Orleans. has arrived with dates to the 29th. The election on the 28th for members of the consti tutional convention, resulted in the complete triumph of the free-State party. The steamer Russell, with 700 bales of cotton and a lot of cattle and hogs, was consumed by fire on the night of the 27th, at Plequemine. The steam or was on the passage from Vicksburg to New Orleans and took fire from sparks from her Cirches. The mail from Alexandria and also disputches from Gen. Lee to headquarters were consumed with the boat. A passenger named Thomas is missing. The boat was valued at $80 000; no insurance.

The French brig Marie Felicite was wreck-ed near Pass Lontre on the 24th ult. The areengers and crew were saved. The rebel ram Tennessee was struck by a quall ou the 1st while lying near Grant's ass, keeled over, and sunk. Nothing but out two feet of the smokestack is visible Her armament will prove a heavy loss to the rebels, which consisted of six 100-pounders rified, six Parrotts, and several small pieces. Ali well with our fleet, though they have ad some very bad weather.

Alexandria advices of the 27th report ali

uiet, with the exception of an occasional k!rmish.
The rebei force is reported at 20,000 strong It was supposed that their intention is to fall back from Alexandria some fifty miles, and there await the coming of our forces.

Three of our gun'ooats bound for Shreve-port had succeeded in getting over the shoals. The land force under Gen. Smith lett Alex-andria 27th, also destined for Shreveport. Five hundred relugees from Texas arrived at New Orieans on the 29th.

The steamship Morning Star from New York had rrived with many passengers and $250.000 in append.

The following particulars of Col. Clayton's receut raid into Arkanana have been received from I attle Rock, March 27th. from I little Rock, March 27th.

Col. Cloyton with a small force of infantry, cavalry and one battery went to Monnt Elba, on Se line river. Leaving the infantry and artillery there to guard the bridge and cover the I due bluff, he proceeded with the cavalry toward Lorg View, further down the Saling and twenty miles southwest where the main.

New York, April 6. and twenty miles southwest, where the main body of the rebels were stationed for the putpose of destroying the pontoon bridge and army stores at 1bat place. Lieut. Greatbonse, of the First Indiana, and Lient. Conize, of the Fitth Kansas cavalry, were sent out with two hundred men. On arriving at the bridge they saw a large force of rebeis on the opposite side preparing to cross. Our officers hailed the enemy, and told they belonged to Shelby's command (which dresses longed to Shelby's command (which dresses la Federal uniform), that the Federals wer upon them, and begged them to hurry to their rescue. The rebels rushed forward, and as first as they crossed they were captured and their arms thrown into the river. Thirty five wagors, heavily laden, were captured, togeth-er with 300 horses and mules and a large mount of Confederate money. After which he bridge was burned. All this and a march 86 miles was accomplished in 24 hours, The prisoners cuptured during the expedition, ambering 370, including many efficers, reached Little Rock on the 2d.

LATER FROM HICKMAN-A VISIT FROM THE GUERRILLAS.-We learn from passengers by the St. Patrick, which arrived here yesterday morning, that on Friday, four hours previous to the landing of the St. Patrick at Hickman, the guerrillas, numbering seven hundred, had occupied the town. They supplied themseives from the stores, paying for the goods in Confederate money. They entered the town under command of Col. Faulkner, who aimed to be very polite to the citizens, and gave them every assurance of protection during their occupation of the piace. Ali the stores were patronized by these very liberal and gentlemaniy cut-throats. We did not jearn the value of Confederate scrip in that place since they left. The force under Faulkner is reported by the citizens to be within a few miles of Hickman, awaiting, no doubt, the movenents of Forrest. All is reported quiet at Columbus and Fort

Tresday evening a difficulty occurred at Lion Garden, on Preston street, near the city limits, in which Benj. Smith was shot and killed. From the testimony before the Coroner's jury we learned the following particulars of the affair: Some time on Tuesday the deceased and George Ansert, proprieter of the Oakland tavern, went to the Lion Garden, where they drank pretty freely and got drunk. The parties became very noisy, throwing their glasses down and swearing that they could whip any person in the house, and threatening to "clean the house out." The proprietor re

She is also provided with an extra boiler and two additional engines—one for working the holsting apparatas, and the other for diving the capetain. The machinery thronghout is a magnificent piece of work, and performs to a charm. The cabin, by Johnson, Morton & Co., is 260 feet in length, and dished in the most modern style, embracing every desirable convenience and comfort. The state-rooms, sixty in number, are all 8 feet square, containing two berths each, while with the usual cotappliances, she will comfortably accommodate two bundred and dilly neasengers in the cable. After the proprietor left the house the two men made an assault upon August Ehret, the son of the proprietor, and barkeeper at the garden. They went behind the bar, when Ehret drew a pistol from the drawer and struck Ansert over the head with the butt of it, inflicting a deep cnt. Ansert left the room to wash the blood from his face, leaving Smith and Ehret engaged in a tuesel, and during his absence Smith was shot in the abdomen, from the effects of which he died it a few moments. Ehret was arrested by officers Shindier and Foreman. The Coroner held an inquest on the body yesterday, which we publish below:

Pittishurg, March 2, 1862.

Having been troubled with desfness for some time past, more particularly after "axing cold, and latterly becoming much ware. I made up my mind, in company with a friend, to visit Dr. Jones, at the Monongahea House. On the 12d day of March 1 did so; and after being seated 1 stated my case, glving full particulars. The Doctor's reply was: "I can restore your hearing as well as it ever was... "How long will it take. Butter?" "No sir, any operation in the same was exted. "You can go to work." The Doctor bersu and went through like some master worstands. Instead of pain, certain parts of the operation in which so much was at stake for me. In less than half an hoar my hearing was perfectly restored, and has remained so ever since. I paid the Doctor his pide, and an perfectly well satisfied with my bargoin. The Doctor and I are even, except that I think I had the best of the bargal. What I have written I have done voluntarily; and did I not believe the cure to be perfect, I would say so without regard to any person.

Dr. Jones at the Edited and Indianapolls defect that he is netther a humbur nor even one of the ordinary leading "Doctors," hat really a scientific man, a biasing to the alliced, and all, tudeed, that he professes to be. We have spoken heretofore very lightly and unqualifiedly of Dr. Jones, but we know the man and his eminen success in other places, and know what we were talking about. We commend the Doctor to the public, not for his benellt, but for the benefit of the affilicted—all who have defective organs of sight or hearing. As an operating surgeon we verify believe he has no equal in America. He has specta takes fortune in acquiring the knowledge he possesses, in the best schools of Europe as well as in this country, and has since had severa years practical experience, attended with success perhaps nover before equalled.
